HEALTH CARE IN 2016

Warsaw is the national hub of specialist health care services, provided by such medical centres as e.g. the Institute of Haematology and Transfusion Medicine, the Maria Skłodowska-Curie Memorial Cancer Centre and Institute of Oncology, the Institute of Tuberculosis and Lung Diseases, the Children's Memorial Health Institute.

Health care infrastructure includes establishments of inpatient (i.e. hospitals) and outpatient health care. In 2016, within the outpatient health care there were 1249 outpatient health care institutions. In comparison to 2015, their number increased by 80. The highest number of outpatient health care institutions are located in central districts with large population such as Śródmieście and Mokotów (203 and 188 respectively), and the lowest number – in peripheral and less populated districts, such as Rembertów, Wesoła and Włochy (7, 15, 19 respectively). Outpatient health care services financed from public funds are provided, apart from outpatient health care departments, by primary care practices. In 2016, there were 22 of them in Warsaw (by 2 more than in the preceding year).

In outpatient health care a total of 21916.7 thousand consultations were provided (3.7% more than in 2015), of which doctor's consultations represented 87.4%, and dentist's consultations – 12.6%. In 2016, primary health care doctors and family doctors provided together 5635.1 thousand consultations, whereas specialist doctors – 13515.5 thousand. Regardless of the district, where consultations were provided, women received doctor's and dentist's services more often than men (60.6% of all consultations provided). People over 65 years of age were frequent patients – receiving 26.1% of consultations. A relatively low proportion of persons receiving consultations in outpatient health care establishments were children and youth up to 18 years old – 18.0%.

In 2016, 653 generally available pharmacies (by 14 more than a year before) were available for inhabitants of the capital city. There were 1763 pharmacists in total employed there.
